“ About a year ago I had the honor of introducing my girlfriend, Lauren to my grandma and grandpa. We all went out to eat at Cracker Barrel. We shared a delicious meal along with lots of laughs and smiles.

Anyways, grandma needed help getting up in my dads truck because they were driving them back to the house. So I jokingly told her to step up on my hands and I'd hoist her into the truck. She ended up stepping on my hand jokingly so I was going to be a man of my word and lift her up, very gently into the truck. As I lifted her foot up she started to fall to the right so I grabbed her by the side to prevent her from falling and I suddenly hear a sound very similar to someone ripping denim jeans. I look at my grandma to see a very red face. Then I noticed.... my grandma just farted all over me. A fart so strong that it blew my hair back.

After a good meal and spending time with the people you love... there's not many ways better to end the night like laughing so hard that everyone around you is crying. I love you grandma. I hope you're watching over all of us. We'll take it from here.
