“ Sorry i have so many but il share two the first growing up living far from all my cousins I didn't get to see them much, several times my aunt and my uncle Joe would pick me up so I could visit with my cousin Jason (best cosin) the seconed, all children go through fads, but science was, and still is my passion and my aunt knew this, I was 11years old , and for my birthday and Christmas gift from her was a science kit. it came with a real, and very good binocular microscope with dissecting kit, specimens, books and more. I was so excited it was one of the best gifts ever. every time I talked to her I would tell her about how I was using the equipment. for 35 years i had that microscope and every time I used it I thought of her and how she supported my interest. when i taught science and let my students use my special scope id always share the story of my aunt who kept me on track with my passion. Thank you Aunt Bernadine, your Eternally thankful nephew Robert
