“ You were my little boy I never had. I remember when you were born. I was so excited I just had to leave school and be there at the hospital. We loved you do much. You were such a smart cute little guy and grew up to be a strong handsome and good young man. When you were little all you wanted to talk about was the weather. I always thought you'd be a meteorologist!! Our family has so many fond memories and funny stories that we will forever share of you. I just can't believe you're gone. I loved our talks and your big hugs. I will never forget you and always wished I would have spent more time with you. Life gets busy. I'm so glad we talked Monday and I got to see you even if it was just for a few minutes. Rest in peace and know you had a great impact on many lives and were a big asset and blessing to our family. I love you David. Proud to have been your aunt.

“ I don't even know where to begin... You know we always said we were cousins despite blood bc that's what we always knew each other as. I just saw you at Walmart the other day and at my work a couple weeks before that. I'm just at a loss for words and confused. Maybe in denial a bit. Shocked. I love you and always will. We have so many memories together and I will forever cherish those. I will be there tomorrow of course. You were my best friend/cousin growing up. I don't even know what to say... I just found out. I love you and these words on your wall arnt sufficient by any means but you know how I felt and I keep thinking of you saying "Missy" and the tone in your voice. Wish I had answers, wish you peace and you know you've got my love. Love, Missy ❤️

“ In the years I was married to Justin, I honestly think I spent as much time with you (and Julie) as I did with him. But I never resented that. You were a good person, easy to get along with and one of the sweetest people I know. This all came too soon. Shine bright. RIP.

“ I still don't want to believe it's true, it's like a bad dream 😞 I remember all the fun we had as kids, videogames, vacations, Christmas mornings, holidays, going to my grandmas on Halloween and getting pounds of candy from there, I remember one time when we were little he tricked me into thinking my controller was plugged into the Nintendo when we had planned to play against each other, when really it wasn't and was just pushed under the rug to make me think I was the other one of the screen playing lol, watching WWF wrestling when we were kids and would argue over who was better, or just hanging out with him and his dogs I loved so much all watching movies and having cookouts, I'll never forget those times, I'd look so forward to him picking me up from school in his stealth, stereo booming and exhaust could be heard for blocks, so many people would stare when he pulled up to get me and ask about the car the next day at school. A lot of people were jealous of his friend Adam's blue Trans am (I hope I said that right) I looked up to him, he inspired me to one day hopefully become a police officer, I would still like to do that, I wish I would've done more with my brother and I planned to. We did seem to argue a lot over the years, I guess that's just how brothers are. I wish it wasn't, it's not easy getting over losing your only brother, I loved him and always will, I might not have showed it at times but I did of course and I'm sure he was the same, I can just seem him up there detailing cars and driving that stealth at full speed tuned up like he always wanted it 😎 he was a character. I miss you Bubby, Rest In Peace ❤️, I'll see you soon,

Andrew Martinez - June 19, 2016 at 02:36 AM

DS

I remember him doing that with the controller many times. I also remember him conning you out of food all the time. You always wanted your hair like his, or wanted to wear the exact same shirt to "be like Bubby". I remember all through school when you had to write reports or essays on someone you looked up to, or wanted to be like, or idolized. You always wrote about Bubby. You're right, you guys fought a lot. Like most brothers. But we all knew you both loved each other. Bubby is there with papaw and uncle Danny waiting for us on our day. I love both more than anything in this world 🍷❤️🍷❤️🍷❤️🍷❤️

“ Still in disbelief from this. He was such an influence on everyone's lives and certainly knew how to enjoy it. Always managed to move into the center of attention with quick witted comments, trading jabs about rival NFL teams, or just listening to how his stories of current events could be broken down with humorous precision -and of course the car discussions. Was always entertainment to sit back and listen to him and the gang mess with each other. We feel like we've lost a member of our own family and it leaves such a huge void in our hearts. We'll always have his memories to cherish, and I know I'll think of him when watching the Jets -and swear if they ever win the SuperBowl he's just arranged something with the powers to be after a skillful negotiation. We certainly loved having him in our lives and will miss him dearly. RIP David

Jerry Kinney - June 18, 2016 at 11:50 PM

“ I knew David and his family when he was just about two years old or so. I was friends with his parents and his mother babysat my daughter, Melissa. It didn't take long before Melissa was a close playmate of David's, but of course, I always called him "Little David". They were each other's "partner in crime" - well, what were two little ones to do, but get into mischief?? - Ha! I have not lived in Lebanon for many years now and "news" tends to get my way by text or phone call over time, and so, this news came to me this evening in the same way. My jaw dropped when I heard and tears came to my eyes. Just a few months ago I had been going through old photos and I had to chuckle to myself as I came across one of my Melissa and Little David... both of them playing in the bathtub at about three years of age...so innocent and cute. At the time, I had told them both that I was going to put that picture in the paper for their high school graduation - Ha! - but of course, they were far too young to understand - I can remember their laughter.

I was able to watch David grow up to be quite a young man and would run into him from time to time over the years. I was proud and quite pleased for him when he came driving around in his first "fast car"! - all the windows down and the stereo on!! - he always liked his cars.

When he was young, he would often speak fondly of his grandparents and I even remember a time when his grandparents had sent him a postcard from a vacation they were on - boy, was Little David excited about that!! He was a little guy so full of energy!!! - hide and seek, splashing in the pool, birthday parties (and WAY TOO MUCH SUGAR - HA!!), dinosaurs, cars and nightlights... these are some of my sweet memories of this special young man. My prayer is that God is holding you tightly and I am most certain that you are bending his ear off with those numerous questions of yours!! The memories of your youth make me smile and I appreciate being able to share part of your life with you and your family. I know the hearts of David's family are missing him and I hope the joyful memories of time spent with him, will eventually outweigh and outshine the sorrow you currently feel. Each holiday, you will be reminded of how much he meant to you, and through the tears... and with time... you will smile and your heart will be warmed by his memory. Sending a hug your way - Robin Wood

“ I really wish I had David here now to tell me what to write. I'm sure He would have some amazing elaborate story all ready for me. David is 5 days older than me although he would always try to tell me happy birthday on the wrong day. We grew up 2 houses down from each other our whole lives. Ever since I can remember I've had David by my side. Whether it was for neighborhood squirt gun fights, planning to run away and live under the sewers like the ninja turtles, to high school and first crushes, and heartbreak, first cars, and apartments. For all the road trips to nowhere and late night conversations where he would try to convince me why I was wrong using 20 different points and various "facts". David knew everything and if he didn't you'd never know it. He was smart, too smart sometimes. He was funny and sarcastic. He was witty. He was also kind and big hearted. Saying he was my best friend feels so far from how much he meant to me. He was my brother. He was family and I don't know what I'll do without him. I love you David.

“ I am a David's second cousin from Wolcott Indiana.

I have read all the nice tributes everyone has said about him and I am so sorry, this is a gut wrenching loss. This young man who made a difference in a lot of people's lives all for the good, you all must be so proud to have had such a giving, loving man but most of all a wonderful friend, cherish those memories and hold them close to your heart and with doing that he will never be forgotten. His legacy of kindness will be carried on thru all of you. That can be your gift to David. I know my heart hurts for his loving wife, dad, and his brother along with his grandmother. I know in my heart he is with God and those loved ones that left us before him awhile ago, its not going to be easy nor will the weeks ahead. But as time passes it will get better. This big adjustment will be in everyone's lives, Everyone must be there for all his friends and family, again do what you think David would have done and I am positive you all will. We love you David and you are in the greatest place you can be. God has a wonderful new Angel and his name is David Martinez JR. Your cousin Susie Shanklin McClure.

“ We will miss you so much. The memories we have, the places we've been, and all of the times you were there for us will always be in our minds. We will always value your friendship. I'll miss all of the debates you and Adam would get into, even the never ending argument of who's fault it was for backing into our basketball goal with the Uhaul when we moved into the house. “ I remember my best friend Rick Sheets and I shooting David's basketballs in his little Tyke set. Rick was in one corner, I was in the other. We kept shooting and David was about 3. He loved chasing down the balls for us, laughing the entire time as he and Rick kept calling each other Meatball. He was amazed at how Rick would rarely miss. When he was about 12, we visited Rick in Ky. Rick would play him one on one in his driveway. David would laugh at how Rick would fake him out of his shoes. Then he'd complain about his feet hurting.

“ Though I never had the chance to meet David face-to-face, I've spoken to him in several chats. Those of you who knew him know how much he enjoyed cars, & those of us old enough to remember him from the 3SI.org days are all in mourning to hear of his passing...He made an impact in the community for his selflessness attitude.

My first memory of Dave was back when a fellow forum member's highly-modified, prized 3000GT VR-4 was stolen. He must have just recently joined the academy as I was in my early years at college. While we, as a community, were all on high-alert for this stolen car from around the PA area, David took it upon himself to use any resources that he could think of to locate the car, secure it & return it to its rightful owner.

It was around this time that I offered up any assistance as needed, in case the thief happened to make it to the Madison, WI area. David eventually became further involved with the stolen car alert as the local cops had already brushed it off as a loss for the owner. Fast forward a little over three weeks from when the car was reported stolen, someone happened to recognize the car sitting in a driveway, blocked by multiple other cars. After a group of vigilante board members barricaded the driveway until the cops could show up and arrest the guilty, David then drove there from IN to personally bring the car back to the rightful owner.

I spoke with him from time to time on instant messengers about cars & life, but as life got busier we stopped chatting. It wasn't until years later that we met again on Facebook, I reminded him about how he was a true legend on the old forum & have always enjoyed catching up on his wittiness through posts in the past several years.

He is going to be greatly missed as he was a hell of a guy and has made a big impact on many lives. R.I.P. Firestorm95RT.

“ My absolute favorite memory of High School and David combined is the day that we were all hanging out in "Tiger Town" and somehow Andy Gyger found his way into a cylindrical pop cooler, and David was helping to push him around, sliding him far across the floor near the gymnasium.

Scott Hulse rambled a memorable "Andy went by in a box" that naturally has us all laughing. Andy, stuck in the cooler, was stopped by Bob Ross and wheeled into his office. Even if Mr. Ross would have approached David to discuss punishments, nothing would have sufficed unless David first negotiated his way out of it. Very few people I'm this world could argue a point or negotiate their way out of something any better.

Thank you for what memories you helped me keep.

“ David was one of my first friends when I moved to Lebanon. I grew up down the street from him and have tons of great memories of causing trouble around the neighborhood, especially on the bus. David and I gave our bus driver, John, a run for his money (along with our other friends in our little group). I could always count on him. As we grew up we talked less and I regret that. *I love and miss you so much. I miss your detailed stories. I miss your laughter. You were always a sweet boy. Always willing to lend a hand, or do a good deed. There is now a hole in my heart that will never heal. I wish I would have hugged you more, or told you how much I loved you more. I love hearing the stories your friends tell me about you. I was blessed to be able to call you my son. I was always proud of you. My life will never be the same.
Love Dad*
