“My first memories of my close friend Kevin started when I bumped into him and brother Keith riding around Lebanon on our bmx bikes. They had killer bikes and me and my other close friend Mike Nunley were in awe. Our bikes were not up to par, so Mike and I were thinking “hey if we can buy some better rides, they will hang with us and be our buds.” Well it worked, they accepted us in, but they first made us do some pretty scary stunts, like jumping over cars with ramps, jumping off a roof top of a church, and riding down a 20 foot park slide. We got banged up pretty good at times, but we lived through it somehow.

Then someone got the idea of taking karate and we had a great time for years doing that sport. Kevin was a very competitive person. He pushed me when we sparred and we trained hard. He was one of the best I ever fought. Then when we were old enough to drive, we started fishing. We both have fathers who fished and raised us in the outdoors, we really fell in love with bass fishing. We fished hard every chance we had. We fished all over God's creation, but we always loved fishing for smallies on Sugar creek the best. We just jumped in and walked for miles and hooked em' good. We loved that place. It's were we found peace. We always said God took his knife and cut through this land and gave us a slice of heaven. I could write for hours about the times I had with him.

I was blessed to know him. He was a wise, honest and hard-working man. I loved talking to him about life. He helped me through tough times. He was the best friend a man could have. I talked to him every chance I could while he was sick. He fought hard, was brave and he never gave up. I will see you again my friend in the whole peace of heaven...

*Awe. All these memories, flowing back.
Last time I saw him was a couple years ago, he came into McClure and was buying a lottery ticket and pointed out his name and winner of 1,000 dollars a week.
Said Hey! Look Christy! I got lucky, thats me right there!
I wrote a blog on my own fb page, about you guys too. Sweet Memories of BMX days and Karate. I also thought of you and Mike instantly with losing Kevin.
Your blog on here brought tears and very heartfelt. Take care Miller..Rest in peace Smith*

“ Growing up just down the road from the Smith boys the one thing that's always stuck with me over the years was riding my bike to the alley that ran next to and behind their house and watching them do their tricks on the quarterpipe ramp. The sport was in its infancy back then, I always thought of them as pioneers of the sport.
RIP Kevin
